R. J. STRATTON, Supt. of Docatur Chalight and Coke Co.

R. J. Spacros, Sup't Dear Str. I am using a No. 7 Cas Bange, and it is with pleasage that I hear witness to the many good qualities. For utility, elemliness, comfort and economy, it is all I could desire; anything can be cooked on it that can be cooked on any stoyo, with, in my opinion, less expense, and certainly with less trouble and more comfort. I cheerfully recommend it.

Yours Truty. MRS. HENRY ELWOOD.

Mi. I. J. Strevtion, Supt. Draw Sir. I want to say to you that the gas stove join furnished to me last Summor is much more satisfactory than I had hoped for I can do every kind of cooking with it, and the regularity of the heat gives better results than any other stove. I should not desire to keep house without it.

MRS. FRANK H. HALL.

R. J. STRATTON, Supt. Dear Sir: 1 have in use one of your Gas Cooking Ranges and as a matter of convenience and comfort it is unsurpassed, and is all you claim for it—gas costing about the same as oil or coal. MRS, WM. PLUCK. Yours Respectfully,

BABYHOOD'S PILLOW.

REVERIE THAT TAKES A MAN BACK TO HIS INFANCY.

Happy Hours-Papa Gives Him Candy for Being Good-The Mother Whose Kiss

I make ready to set my papers in order on my desk and turn out my lamp, when all at once my bed, on which I have somehow turned a more contemplative look than usual, begins to wear a strange mysterious air, meditative and thought ful, with its coverlet turned down, its sheets open and its pillow ready for my head. Why do I sit down again and think an hour and still another hour? My lamp goes out of its own accord, and the night passes without heeding me.

I am 3 years old again. I sleep in a little white crib, larger than papa's leather valise, smaller than mamma's piano; a crib draped with fresh curtains which close about me every evening and are fastened with a silver pin "to make me a little room." When I raise my head I see above me an ivory cross swinging at the end of a blue ribbon that hangs from the cornice; on each side of me is a long white silk net, so that I shall not fall out. But I am always kicking off the covers and slipping through it and they continually find me with an arm or a log caught and hanging in the meshes.

My crib, which I warm with my little childish body, where I am given my warm milk in the early morning, which is so comfortable when the dector says I am sick, stands at the foot of papa's and mamma's big bed, so that it gives me great confidence to be so near themboy who are afraid of nothing! I do not know how it is, but I must be always asleep when they come in to go to bed -I never see them. Their bedtime is later lean mine, much later-perhaps oven an hour. As soon as Pie, my muse, a big girl, brusque and good hearted, who eaches mo how to say my prayers to the Bon Dieu in German—as soon as she has given me my dinner, quick! Lam popped into a little bed whose end my feet never see. When shall I be as hig as my night gowns? In spito of all my efforts I can never catch up to them. Then as soon as I am stretched out on the mattress, and Pie has vigorously tucked me in, I cry out with all my might, hamentably, like a little dog that is being whipped: "Mamma! Mamma!" Some one comes. There is a noise of footsteps in the corridor. It is papa and mamma. Papa says: "Will you stop making such a noise, you little rascal? We can hear you allover the house!" He arms to the marso and frowns:

"Pic," he says, "fell mothe truth. Has this child been naughty?" "Nein, he has been very goot," says the excellent Pie.

"Then he shall have a piece of candy," says papa, ratisticd at once. "Mint, papa, mint!" I cry out.

"Yes, ramit" and papa, himself drops into my little moist, open mouth the big, white crumbling peany which I love so, and which I begin to taste as soon as its penetrating odor reaches my nose. Under my little teeth the mint drop disappears. like magle. Manima whispers: "Plat it up, then, little goose," or, "Ha will break his teeth to pieces."

MANMA DOESN'T SAY A WORD. Then she bends over me, and then I whip out my two arms from the cover-let to clasp her around the neck. I know very well that it must tire her to be weighted down so, but still I like to do it. twice, three times—then with her pretty fingers she hurriedly traces the sign of the cross on my forehead (before 1 came there were two little brothers who both went away to heaven) and she tenderly closes the curtains without censing to look lovingly in at me through the opening which grows smaller--smaller.

At last the curtains are tight shut and I an see nothing more. But I can hear. Papa has already gomenway to his study, where I somehow know that he is going smoke a eigar. Maiama, ali, but namma is still there. She is talking to Pie in a low voice she is talking of all kinds of things and they are all about me. Then the lamp goes on its nightly journey. It travels about, it changes its place; thaily it is put on a certain curner of the mantelpice, always the same corner, where its dim light cannot reach me. Then I hear the noise of the fender —a chair put mus place la carriago in thestreet then

All at once I am at last a man, and am enring trousers like myfUncle Edward. But often I awake with a start and then a great fear of the night and the darkness seizes me; I stretch out my arms and knock- too, too! -on the big bed. The hig bed will protect me. Toe toe! Toe, tue! The knocking itself frightens me in the salence.

The big bed creaks confusedly. I hear papa, half awake, telling me in a queer, droll tone to be quiet—"88ht We are all asleep," he says; "everybody is asleep." Mamma docknot say a word. She rises she rises and ab! even after forty years my heart recollects the light fall of her dear soft feet on the carpet and the sound of her low voice, invisible like herself, murmuring close to my cheek, What is it, durling?" while without hesitation her kiss comes straight to me in the night and unerringly finds me. Translated from the French for The Philadelphi : Times,

He Got Square, A young haly broke off her engagement with a suitor when a wealthier lover appeared upon the scene. She wrote to her old lover requesting him to return her 1 hotograph. Here was a chance for revenge, which he took by sending her the following note: "I would gladly comply with your request, but if I do it will spoil my eachre deck. Thave a collection of photographs which I use for playing cards, and 1 do not want to break it by goving away the queen of diamonds. - Waverley Magazine.

A veteran of the Thirty-sixth Illinois olunteers furnishes this:

After we had flanked Johnston's army from Dallas, it was, contrary to the usua custom, the fortune of the First brigade—Sheridan's old division—to be left behind the army a few days, as a guard for an ambulance train. One day two of our men-one of them Jack Tyrrell, commissary of our brigade-went to take both beyond and in sight of our picket line, in a small bayou, which temerity was observed by some of Ferguson's cavalry hovering in the vicinity, who detached two men armed with sabers and earlines to bring them in. Being without arms they were surprised, and started off on deshabille, in the very face of the pickets, who dared not fire for fear of injuring the prisoners. Each rebel started in a different direc-tion with his charge. After going a short distance Tyrrell dodged to one side exposing his captor to our pickets, who gave him a volley, but missed, on which the Johnny, out of spite, returned the shot; when Tyrrell, taking advantage of his empty carbine, sprang and caught him by his abundant whiskers and dragged him from his horse. Here a short struggle ensued, in which the Confederate had to give way to northern muscle, although they were both good ypes of their countries, and Johnny minus his gun and saber, was marched to the picket lines by his escort, who guided him by walking behind him with one hand in each side of his whiskers. It is uscless to say that he was received by the pickets with considerable merriment. The other Confederate, on seeing his comrade's fate, and hearing the whir of a few random shots, fled, and left his charge to come back at his will.

KILLED NEAR BOODY.

'Dutch John's" Head Split Open by an Extra Wabash Train.

John Burgher, a farm laborer, familiarly known as "Dutch John," was killed by a Wabash passenger train near Boody on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. The deceased was a laborer in the employ of Adam Ellrich, er., who owns a farm of 116 acres, 3 miles couthwest of Boody. He Attorney Jennings, and Judge Clark, of had been drinking hard eider yesterday and had started to walk up the track to the time was the outcome of an old the town. The supposition is that he laid down upon the railway track, with his head upon one rail, his body being on the outside of the rads, and had gone to pan foolishness at a wedding during the sleep. The train which struck him was an extra of seven conches, carrying the Metropolitan Opera Company from Cincago to St. Louis. The head of the deceased was aplit wide open when the ongine struck hun.

Coroner Bendary visited Boody evening, and held the inquest today, a verdict of death by being struck by the train being the veidict.

The deceased was 35 years of ago and single. He will be baried by the county at Salem graveyard this evening.

and treasurer. Kabrick Convicted.

All Saturday afternoon the assault case at Janes' Chapel was ventilated in Justice Curtis' court. The fact that James H. Kabrick had assaulted Thomas Peniwell, a brother member of the Chapel, was not denied by the defendant, who had been arrested on city and state warrants for assault. A. H. Mills appeared for the state, and City Attorney McDonald for the city. Thomas Lee and John lands ay were counsel for the defendant. There was ample proof to show that Peniwell Lad been assaulted as charged, and Kabrick was fined $3 and costs on each warrant, a total of nearly $9. In some manner the trouble in the church about the discharge of the jainten and the offi-cial act of placing the keys in the hands of Mr. Peniwell was permitted to be told in an imperfect way, consequently the large crowd of spectators had the full benefit of the church scandal. More of the evidence will come out at the church trial on Monday, May 13th. At that trial Kabrick will be defonded by W. W. Jones, late United. Labor, candidate, for overnor. Mattoon. The murder as reported at gradge. John Kline was a farmer and owned a place adjoining the Wacases farm. The ill-feeling grew out of a tin winter of 1887. A man named Bryant the bridegroom, fired into the crowd of serenaders, and one of Wacaser's men was shot. The bride was a sister of Kline. When Wacaser and Kline met in the corn field the day of the killing, there was a knock-down fight with no w.tnesses, Wacaser stabbing Kline as he aroso to defend himself. Before he expired Mrs. Bryant reached the side of her brother in time to hear him say: "Frunk Wacaser stabbed me." Wacaser was manediately arrested and has since been in the county jail at Sulhyan. He is 29 years old and has a wife and three children. The defendant will plead self-
